Partial plans, problems and some solutions to proposed conversion of Route 62 north to a four lane highway have been outlined by William Troxell, district engineer, Franklin office, State Department of Highways.

REVIEW WIDENING OF ROUTE 62

A large but integrated group of representatives concerned with all phases of progress in Warren County met Wednesday to hear a preliminary review of the proposed widening of Route 62 north of the borough to some point south of Conewango Valley Country Club. Pictured, from left, are Al Osborne, assistant district engineer, Franklin office, state highway department; Bill Rusin, county planning commission, Assemblyman William W. Allen; William Troxell, district highways engineer and Clifford Johnson, chairman, Warren County Chamber of Commerce transportation committee. (Photo by Mansfield)

Plans for Route 62 Changed To Permit Left Turns

Partial plans, problems and some solutions to proposed conversion of Route 62 north to a four-lane highway were outlined Wednesday noon by William Troxell, district engineer, Franklin office, State Department of Highways.

Troxell met with a combined group concerned with Warren County progress in all phases including highways. Represented were the county commissioners, borough and county planning commission, U.S. Forest Service, borough manager and engineers, Warren County Chamber of Commerce and Warren County Motor Club. Business and Industry representatives were also present.

According to the district engineer, the state highways department has agreed to elimination of Route 62 plans of a median barrier, which local interests objected to since it would complicate left turns into the built up area.

Present plans call for a 16-foot median strip which would permit left hand turns with grass median safety lanes.

Troxell envisioned major road intersection curbs with standby lanes provided for those waiting to make left turns as a protection against rear end collisions.

Criteria for recovery area for Route 62 widening calls for no obstacles within 30 feet of edge of pavement, but Troxell stated that a 40-mile-per-hour speed limit enforced might make it possible to water this down and save some right of way.

Plans call for dividing the widening between both sides of the present three-lane rather than taking it all on one side. The rights of way involved, Troxell said, are not as bad as people think.

Troxell emphasized that allocations from the state highway commission for Route 62 north are sufficient to do only part of the job at this time. Widening, he advised, would start north of Seventh avenue and continue to some point south of Conewango Valley Country Club.

While the entire length to end at Russell will be designed, with funds being critical, Troxell pledged his department will do the best it can to try to

Warren Below Average In Registered Voters

A bi-partisan Republican and Democratic party survey places Warren and the county well below the state average of registered voters. The figures are quoted by the League of Women Voters in an effort to spur all men and women to get registered before it's too late. The deadline is Sept. 16.

To make it convenient for everybody the Warren post office lobby will have registration available tomorrow from 1 to 8 p.m. The county commissioners will furnish the registrars, as well as a voting machine to be demonstrated by League members. This special registration event was arranged by the commissioners at the request of the LWV.

Both political parties across the state are very much concerned with the apathy shown by citizens in failing to vote. The survey taken showed that 33 per cent of the Pennsylvanians who could vote cannot be bothered to register.

"Unhappily, Warren is far below this state average," said Mrs. T. K. Stratton, president of the League of Women Voters of Warren Area. "Thirty-eight per cent of our borough and county residents have not yet registered," according to this special survey.

Many Participate in Plans For Kinzua Country Weekend

Leroy Schneck, president of the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau, announced Wednesday that invitations had gone out to outdoor writers and radio-TV commentators in Ohio, New York and Pennsylvania to "Explore Kinzua Country" during a weekend get-together on October 4, 5 and 6.

The program of events will be directed towards entertaining the guests and "showing off" the recreational highlights of Kinzua Country as suggestive material for their columns, features, and outdoor shows. A wide range of offers have been made to the committee planning the program by interested persons and organizations in the community, leaving little lacking to fill out a highly interesting and informative program.

Those who have signified their desire to participate to date are: The Scandia Mountain Association, Tidloute Chamber of Commerce, Kalbus Club, Kinzua Campers, Scandia Air Park, P.F. Ranch, Wade's Woods, Red Oaks Campgrounds, Plowright Playhouse, Lawn and Garden Center, Curt Sasserson, and Phil Lively, (pontoon boats), Allegheny Outfitters, the U.S. Forest Service, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Pennsylvania Department of Commerce and the Pennsylvania Fish Commission.

Outdoor writers and radio-TV commentators invited to attend are:

Jerry Blinzley, Outdoor Journal, Hubbard, Ohio; T. J. Frye, camping columnist, Columbus, Ohio; Dick Martin, syndicated columnist, Shelby, Ohio; Soc Clay, syndicated columnist, South Shores, Ky.; Lowell Haisan, archery columnist, Portsmouth, Ohio; Jack Pickering, hunting editor, Columbus, Ohio; Joe Able, fishing editor; Youngstown, Ohio; and Hank Andrews, outdoor editor, Cleveland.

Johnson Asks U.N. To Define U.S. Policy Toward Europe

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — President Johnson summoned the National Security Council Wednesday to define United States policy toward a Europe nervous and confused in the wake of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

At issue was the difficulty of balancing two lines of policy: One is the president's evident desire to pursue — even if after some delay — his "bridge-building" policies toward the East.

The other is the need to assure the Western allies that the desire for a Washington-Moscow détente will not lead to sacrificing Western European security.

Some administration policy-makers are arguing that the new strategic situation created by the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia requires new priorities for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, at least in short-term policy planning.

Reversing the trend of recent years' policies, this would emphasize military preparedness in the alliance rather than the search for political openings to the Communist bloc.

Western European concern about a new Soviet militancy was reflected at an evening meeting in Bonn between the West German chancellor, Kurt Georg Kiesinger, and U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge. Kiesinger reportedly stressed the seriousness with which his government views the massive Soviet presence in Czechoslovakia.

And in Brussels, the NATO defense planning committee stated that "prospects for progress in the field of balanced mutual force reductions (in Central Europe) have suffered a severe setback."

White House officials insisted that the present tensions have in no way closed the doors to a resumption of the "bridge-

Astronauts End Rehearsal For New Apollo Blastoff

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Three astronauts scheduled to rocket into orbit next month safely completed a countdown rehearsal Wednesday similar to one which led to fiery death for the Apollo 1 pilots last year.

A successful mock liftoff of the Apollo 7 spacecraft and its Saturn IB rocket occurred at 4:26 p.m. EDT after delays of nearly 2½ hours because of problems with test procedures, ground equipment feeding electricity to the spacecraft and astronaut-to-blockhouse communications.

"All is going well aboard the Apollo 7 spacecraft," reported the astronaut crew commander, Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., as the ship sped into a make-believe orbit after the simulated blastoff.

During the test, a transformer overheated on a cable tower about 60 feet below the level of the spacecraft. Officials said "we did get a little smoke, but no fire." The transformer was turned off and it had no effect on the countdown.

It marked the first time the launch pad electrical test was attempted since Air Force Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom and Ed. ward H. White II and Navy Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee were trapped in their flaming cabin 19 months ago.

Rigid Censorship Clamped On Czech Newspapers, Radio

PRAGUE (AP) — Rigid censorship was clamped on Czechoslovakia's newspapers and broadcasters Wednesday, banning any news reports that "could be considered as criticism" by the Soviet-led occupation forces.

The rules prohibited use of the terms "occupants" and "occupation"; reprinting of critical commentaries from abroad; "popularizing" the idea of neutrality, and playing up the activities of the United Nations Security Council. Only the official viewpoint of the Czechoslovak government may be printed or broadcast.

National Assembly Chairman Josef Smrkovsky issued an appeal in the Communist party newspaper Rude Pravo, asking the people to understand "measures taken to fulfill responsibly the obligations of the Moscow accord."

Foreign Minister Jiri Hajek, reported to be "somewhere in Switzerland," was expected to be ousted following the resignation of Deputy Premier Ota Sik. The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia published another attack on Sik Wednesday, calling him "one of the most odious figures" in the liberation movement in Prague.

Izvestia contended Sik "wanted to turn the country onto the capitalist road and dependence upon the capitalist powers." Hajek too has been attacked by the newspaper for trying to establish closer ties with the West.

Czechoslovaks in Prague seemed to be doing their utmost to comply with Soviet demands in hopes that the occupation troops will keep their promise to leave when the situation "normalizes." But many people asked the question: "Who will decide when normalcy is attained?"

Groups of young Czechoslovaks still armed with Soviet soldiers on street corners, but they appeared friendlier. A teenage girl was seen holding hands with a Russian private.

Saboteurs Set Off Bombs In Crowded Tel Aviv

TEL AVIV (AP) — Saboteurs set off three bombs in a crowded Tel Aviv bus terminal Wednesday, killing one person and wounding 49. The incident touched off vengeful rioting in the nearby ancient port of Jaffa where Jew and Arab had lived peacefully side by side for 20 years.

The explosives, hidden in litter bins, sent shrapnel-like fragments of metal flying into crowds of waiting passengers. It was the worst sabotage incident in Israel's largest city in 10 years.

Elsewhere, the Israeli army reported three clashes with Jordanians. It said the Jordanians opened fire with light arms and mortars on Israeli positions near the settlements of Kfar Ruppin and Beit Yosef Wednesday night. Earlier, a spokesman said, Jordanians fired on Neve Ur and Yardenia settlements in the Beisan valley and on Israeli positions near Umm Sedra in the Jordan valley. No casualties were reported.

At least 30 Arabs and several Jews were injured in the Jaffa rioting. Hundreds of Jews gathered outside the town's main police station where scores of Arabs were brought for questioning or for their own safety.

At least four Arab cars from Israeli-held Arab territory were damaged and overturned.

North Vietnamese Denounce Party Platforms on Viet

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam injected acid comment on the U.S. presidential campaign into the Paris peace talks Wednesday. It denounced both parties' platforms on Vietnam and said both candidates mean to press on with the war.

This brought from Ambassador W. Averell Harriman the report that both the Democratic and Republican parties want peace and quoted to Ambassador Xuan Thuy this statement by Sir Winston Churchill: "No man understands the politics of another country and few men are gifted enough to understand the politics of their own."

They called Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democratic nominee, "an apologist" for President Johnson's war policy.

He declared Richard M. Nixon, the Republican nominee, wanted "escalation of the war to the highest level." He said Nixon was compelled to "talk peace simply to mislead public opinion."

They asserted that "the positions embodied in the two platforms recently passed show that they will still refuse to draw practical lessons from their recent defeats and to move toward a correct solution of the Vietnam problem."

"Thus either through the Republican or the Democratic platform and either through the words of Mr. R. Nixon or Mr. H. Humphrey," he continued, "the United States is still scheming to pursue its war of aggression in Vietnam and to perpetuate the division of Vietnam."

Harriman replied: "You should read the platforms of the two parties with a full knowledge of their meaning and their political implications.

"They both demonstrate the indisputable fact that the people of the United States are dedicated to peace.

"But they both emphasize that the United States is determined there will be a just and honorable peace in Vietnam."

Enemy Shells Two More Provincial Capitals

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy forces shelled two more South Vietnamese provincial capitals, including Nha Trang, command center for American forces in the central highlands, military spokesman reported Wednesday.

The barrages against Nha Trang and Quang Ngai, both located along the South China Sea coast, followed a pattern over the past several days in which the enemy has reverted to long-distance attacks after having suffered heavy losses in two weeks of ground assaults.

One South Vietnamese policeman was killed and 21 civilians and 17 allied soldiers were wounded in the shelling of Nha Trang, military spokesman reported. The wounded included one American and the rest South Vietnamese, Filipino and South Korean soldiers.

Field reports said the enemy gunners appeared to have been aiming for the Nha Trang airfield, but some of their rounds were off the mark and landed in residential areas. There were no immediate reports of civilian casualties.

U.S. headquarters said some military facilities were hit, but the exact damage to buildings were not reported. Aircraft damage was described as light. The first barrage of about 30 rounds of 82mm mortars came shortly after midnight and lasted through dawn when the enemy gunners slammed several rounds of recoilless rifle fire into the airfield and adjoining residential district.

Justice Department Puts Heat On Racketeers and Gamblers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department turned up the heat on racketeers and gamblers during fiscal 1968, Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark reported Wednesday.

His accounting on the fight against professional criminals was in some respects a rebuttal to critics who have implied the department has gone soft on the career criminal. In Clark's view the year was "the most effective (one) in the history of federal law enforcement's effort to eliminate organized crime."

"Heavy and increasing pressure from coordinated law enforcement action . . . (has) weakened organized crime's hold in many parts of the nation," he said.

Reporting a record 1,166 persons indicted in cases handled by the department's organized crime and racketeering section, Clark said convictions totaled 520—up 30 per cent from fiscal 1967—and of those, 281 were against gambling and racketeering. Seven hundred others in this category are awaiting trial, Clark said.

The attorney general said the 1,166 figure compared with 1,107 in fiscal 1967 but he thought a more dramatic comparison was with the 19 indictments returned in 1960.

Clark said that was the year the current drive against organized criminals began, and he said indictments and convictions have increased steadily since.

He didn't specifically mention it, but convictions against gamblers rose sharply following special legislation enacted by Congress in 1961 banning the transmission of wagering information and gambling paraphernalia across state lines.

Clark said the federal dragnet caught 210 known or suspected members of the Mafia during the past 13 years. Of these, he reported, 48 were indicted or convicted during the past fiscal year ending June 30.

To do it, the number of attorneys in the racketeering and organized crime section also increased steadily and reached an all-time high last year.

These attorneys, the attorney general said, spent nearly 7,000 man-days coordinating investigations and prosecutions in the field, half as many again as in the previous year.

The most rapid rise in the Justice Department's success began in fiscal 1967, Clark said, when what he called a strike force—a team of attorneys and investigators from key federal agencies moving comprehensively against organized crime in metropolitan areas—was launched.

He said this concept was so successful three additional strike teams were organized last year and he said in the past six months indictments were returned against hoodlums in Detroit, Mich., and Brooklyn, N.Y.

Philadelphia, Pa., is currently "host" to the crime hunters and Clark promised four more unnamed cities will be strike force targets this fiscal year.

achieve what Warren wants.

As for lower Market street, the engineer said there was no reason why this section could not remain the same. It is wide enough, he stated, to accommodate four lanes although parking might have to be eliminated. He reminded of projected plans to bridge the Allegheny with a Market street bridge to connect with the proposed Route 6, Warren bypass.

Troxell pointed out eventual expense and problems involving 3,000 feet of railroad right of way opposite the country club but stated the department would face that problem when the time arrived.

More detailed plans from the highway department regarding Route 62 were promised and a target date for construction of plan under contract by the end of this fiscal year contingent on working out some local problems with the Harrisburg office.

Action on the Warren bypass may be seen in March of next year but rights of way for properties and utilities must be cleared before contracts can be let.

Troxell noted that two lanes of the Youngsville bypass should be open by this winter.

In answer to some opposition to the Route 62 proposal, Troxell reminded that the improvement was recommended by the county planning commission in its master plan along with other highway projects which already have been placed as top priority.

Clifford Johnson, chairman of the Chamber's transportation committee, who presided at the session, said as soon as more specific Route 62 plans were available, another meeting of the group will be called.

Immediately following the Blue Manor session, highway officials, adjourned to the municipal building to discuss the proposed interchanges of the Warren bypass at Ludlow street and Main avenue.

Borough manager Victor L. Miller said the brief session was called in order to give the borough some idea as to what plans must be made on the local level to meet the two sections. He stated no definite conclusions were drawn Wednesday.

building" policy, enunciated by the President in October, 1966 in a more opportune political climate, internationally and domestically.

With over four months remaining of the Johnson administration, the judgment of high policy advisors is that a summit meeting of the President and Soviet Premier Aleksei N. Kosygin has been delayed but not necessarily cancelled by the Czechoslovak Crisis.

Under immediate examination in the administration was the western strategic intelligence system for Central Europe, in which advance warnings of a Soviet buildup for invasion were discounted.

One such warning is understood to have come on Aug. 2, 18 days before the Red Army moved, from the U.S. ambassador in Moscow, Llewellyn E. Thompson. When the invasion came on Aug. 20, administration officials admitted being taken by surprise.

Estimates of Soviet political intentions in Central Europe have been severely shaken by the blatant military occupation of Czechoslovakia.

For several years, NATO policymakers judged that the cold war danger from Soviet ground forces was receding, and the official policy of the alliance advocated a mutual withdrawal of troops from the Central European theater.

In the wake of the Czechoslovak occupation, congressional pressure in this country for a unilateral cutback of U.S. troop strength has all but evaporated.

Nixon's Campaign Has Spectacular Beginning

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard M. Nixon's presidential campaign jumped off to a spectacular start in Chicago Wednesday with a gigantic downtown crowd roaring applause and struggling to shake his hand.

"It's the biggest crowd I have seen in eight years on the force," said Policeman Eddie Longstreet.

Solid walls of spectators, six and eight deep, lined the zigzag route taken by Nixon's motorcade from the southern edge of the Loop, downtown center of the city, to his hotel.

They occasionally surged close to the open car in which he was riding, reaching for his hand. Motorcycle policemen struggled to force a path.

Nixon stepped down from the automobile and began shaking hands, but so many well-wishers closed in around him that he had to stop.

He then stood up in the car acknowledging the cheers in the metropolis of Illinois, a key state he lost by 8,577 votes to John F. Kennedy in 1960.

The motorcade route covered about two miles. It was difficult to estimate the total number spread over that distance. But it undoubtedly ran into several hundred thousands.

As the former vice president rode past the Chicago Board of Trade Building, a blizzard of shredded paper floated down from nearby skyscrapers.

Rau To Head National Forge Division Plants

Robert O. Wilder, President of National Forge Company, announced today that Alfred Rau has been elected Executive Vice President of the Forge Division with complete responsibility for operations of the Division plants in Irvine and Titusville.

It was also announced that Rau had been elected to the Board of Directors of the National Forge Company.

Rau began his service with National Forge in 1960 and was heading the export business of the company through the National Forge Export Corporation until 1966. During that year he was made responsible for all marketing activities both domestic and foreign of the National Forge Division.

In January, 1967 he was named Vice President-General Manager of the National Forge Division.

Fanaritis To Head New Struthers Wells Division

John P. Fanaritis of Warren, long-time Struthers Wells Corporation engineering executive, has been appointed president and general manager of a new corporation division.

In a report to shareholders by Jerry Finkelstein, chairman of the board and president, Fanaritis was named to head the corporation's Struthers Nuclear Process Company, which is comprised of facilities in Warren and Titusville, Pa. and Gulpport, Miss.

"It will be his responsibility to direct this expansion of its engineering and manufacturing facilities, to meet the expected growth of our existing business as well as the indicated expansion of our nuclear engineering product line," Kinkelstein said.

Reporting in more general terms, the corporation president outlined a number of changes which have occurred in the operation of the corporation during the past few months.

"These changes basically are in three areas: acquisitions for diversification, new developmental programs, and the expansion of our nuclear products business."

Mayor Daley Offered Equal Broadcast Time

CHICAGO (AP) — A major broadcast group Wednesday offered Mayor Richard J. Daley an hour of prime time to present "Chicago's side of the confrontations between police and demonstrators during the Democratic convention."

The offer came from Metromedia, which has television and radio stations across the country.

John Corporon, vice president and director of news and public affairs for Metromedia, said in a telegram to Daley:

"We will carry your side of the story on Metromedia stations KNEW in San Francisco, KTTV in Los Angeles, KMBC in Kansas City, WTTG in Washington and WNEW in New York.

"In addition, we will make available a videotape of your presentation to any station in the country requesting it. We will also make an audio tape available to all radio stations in the country."

Daley requested Tuesday that the three major television networks give him an hour of prime air time Sept. 11 or 12 to counter what he described as a "one-sided portrayal" of events during last week's convention.

He had not made a similar request to Metromedia.

The mayor's request was rejected by CBS. It was being studied by ABC.

Daley turned down an invitation from NBC to appear with a panel of reporters on a special "Meet the Press" program.

In a news conference statement, Daley said the networks failed to convey "the background and planning for the purpose of disrupting the city and the national convention, the tactics used by the demonstrators, the biographies of the organizers and leaders, the role of the law enforcement agencies and the grave implications of these events."

Dr. Frank Stanton, president of CBS, said in New York City that his network gave "fair and ample coverage to the several sides of the events."

"This coverage," Stanton said, "included Walter Cronkite's prime-time interview with you on Aug. 29 . . . an interview which ran for almost 30 minutes."

In response to NBC's offer of a special "Meet the Press" show, Daley said, "We did not ask to appear in a panel show and the purpose for which we requested time on NBC cannot be met by such a program. We regret that you apparently misinterpreted our request."

Kiwanians Hear Talk on Child Welfare Dept.

The work of the Warren County Child Welfare department was explained by William B. Ferry to Youngsville Kiwanians at their regular Tuesday meeting.

Ferry said the most immediate need of the agency is for foster homes in which to place children now under its care.

Many of these children, the social worker advised, have special problems which require understanding and patience.

In a discussion which followed the talk, the need to combine all agencies working with this class of person was brought out. The phasing out of the Hoffman Children's Home poses some problems for social workers in the county, Ferry noted.

President Gilbert Sanford announced the directors meeting and annual steak fry at Gurney Ball's camp on Hosmer Run road and the chicken barbecue to be put on by members of the Youngsville club at the Republican rally Friday at Wilder Field.

Both Major Political Parties Gear Up Campaign Machinery

HARRISBURG (AP) — Both major political parties are beginning to gear their campaign machinery to launch the November election drive in earnest in Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania Republicans announced Wednesday the opening of the Nixon-Agnew Headquarters in Harrisburg under the direction of David O. Maxwell, the state insurance commissioner who took leave from his $25,000 cabinet post to coordinate the GOP campaign here.

At the same time, Daniel S. Buser took a leave of absence from his $14,667 position as director of the Commerce Department's office of public relations and advertising to join Maxwell's staff.

Buser is to serve as coordinator of public relations and news for the Nixon-Agnew state headquarters.

A spokesman for House Majority Leader Lee A. Donaldson also confirmed that former Republican State Chairman Craig

Truax, Donaldson's administrative assistant, has been appointed national director of field organization for the United Citizens for Nixon-Agnew in Washington, D. C.

Truax, also, is to take a leave of absence from his $25,000 legislative post, the spokesman said.

These developments came one day after Jack L. Conmy, Gov. Shafer's public relations secretary, absented himself without pay from his $22,500 job to become communications director for U. S. Rep. Richard S. Schweiker, the GOP's candidate for the U. S. Senate.

The Democrats, meanwhile, only days after the closing of their presidential convention, have yet to set up a Humphrey-Muskie state headquarters for their national ticket.

However, John M. Lynch, deputy Democratic state chairman, said it was likely that the national office would be structured around the foundation of the Pennsylvania Citizens Committee for Humphrey.

That committee, headed by former Gov. George M. Leader, was geared to win Vice President Hubert Humphrey Pennsylvania support for the Democratic nomination. Now the committee will set its sights on the Nov. 5 election, Lynch said.

Both Schweiker and his Democratic opponent, U. S. Sen. Joseph S. Clark, a two-term incumbent, have their own campaign organizations working for them.

The two state committees, meanwhile, will coordinate the campaigns of the other statewide candidates and legislative aspirants in conjunction with the activity of the national tickets in the state.

The Republican State Committee, incidentally, is to pick up the bill for the Maxwell operation.

Lynch is to serve as coordinator of the Democratic campaigns for auditor general, state treasurer and superior court judge in conjunction with the activities of the separate House campaign committees set up over a year ago.

Maxwell's office is to serve as the coordinating unit between the national GOP ticket, the statewide candidates, and the GOP State Committee.

In addition to Buser, Maxwell has recruited Charles Day, formerly associated with the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, as his executive assistant.

Buser said it was anticipated a staff of 25 would be hired to handle the affairs of the office.

The two Republican candidates are scheduled to visit Pennsylvania this week with Vice Presidential nominee Spiro T. Agnew, governor of Maryland, listed to open the state Young Republicans convention Thursday night in York.

Presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon is to arrive in Pittsburgh Saturday evening for a 5 p. m. airport rally. The purpose of the Nixon stop is to cut a television tape for statewide use later in the campaign.

The Democrats are attempting to schedule Humphrey for their $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner in Harrisburg, tentatively set for Sept. 19. The State Committee said that date may be changed, however, due to its proximity to the national convention.

At the same time, Lynch has written Lawrence O'Brien, Humphrey's campaign director, asking him for a schedule guideline on the party's vice presidential nominee, U. S. Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine. The state committee has received a series of requests for appearances by Muskie, Lynch said.

Strike Halts Work On EHS Addition

EISENHOWER HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING FOR THE WARREN COUNTY SCHOOL DISTRICT

PICKET AT SCENE

A dispute, reportedly caused by the firing of a union steward, has halted construction of an addition to Eisenhower High School slated to double capacity of the school. (Photo by Pratz)

A strike by the Construction and General Laborers Local No. 836, AFL-CIO, halted work Wednesday on the new $1.2 million addition to Eisenhower High School near Lander.

Norge Luvison, director of building and grounds for the county school district, said six areas of the new addition are already in use, but that some finishing details, such as tile on the hall floor, may not be completed by next week as he had hoped.

Clair Beyer of Beyer's Construction Co., general contractor for the project, is optimistic that the deadline for completion agreed upon in the contract can be met. The building contract calls for completion in early January, Beyer said.

Because of a good summer, he had hoped to complete the job by October 1. The earlier completion date is, of course, endangered by the strike.

The new addition will house a cafeteria, a library, several science classrooms (already in use), and a large group discussion room. According to Principal Fred Bauer, the addition will double the capacity of Eisenhower High School.

The building, erected in 1956, was designed to serve 550 students, but approximately 800 students registered yesterday at Eisenhower. With the new addition, the school will be equipped to enroll 1140 students.

Remodeling of the old building, according to Clair Beyer, is already finished.

The strike appears to be the result of a dispute begun when construction foreman fired the labor union steward. Clair Beyer says that the steward was "non-productive."

The union business manager, Jerry Cummings, Bradford, says that the strike was called for "violation of agreement" between the union and Beyer's Construction Co.

KDV Is Official Agency For Warren, Forest Counties

The Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau has been designated as the official tourist promotion agency for both Warren and Forest Counties by resolutions adopted by the board of county commissioners in each area.

The designation must next be concurred in by other governing bodies of boroughs and townships within each county representing over 50 per cent of each county's population. Officials of the vacation bureau are asking a number of townships and boroughs in each county for this concurring resolution.

The designation means that the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau will have full authority to represent the counties in all matters relevant to the Tourist Promotion Law under which counties receive matching state funds for tourist development and promotion.

A minimum of $5,000 is available to each county and last year the vacation bureau received the full $10,000 for its program of work.

In Warren County the vacation bureau replaces the Warren County Development Association in matters of tourist promotion since that organization wishes to concentrate on industrial development.

In Forest County, the vacation bureau replaces the West Forest County Businessmen's Association which felt that the new bureau could better handle the tourist program for their area in conjunction with Warren County.

The following persons have been nominated to serve on the vacation bureau's board of directors for the 1968-1969 year:

From the Warren County Chamber of Commerce, Gordon L. Hanks, S. Harry Spackman, and William R. Walker. From the Tidoute Area Chamber of Commerce, Catherine Christy. From the Sheffield Chamber of Commerce, Richard Curtin. From the Scandia Mountains Association, Robert Wade. In Forest County the Marienville Civic Association has nominated John L. Shoup and Roy A. Marker and the West Forest Businessmen's Association has nominated John M. Brady and Robert C. Clever.

No Longer No. 1

In a recent two-part series, columnist Mason Denison detailed the efforts of Senate Minority Leader Ernest P. Kline of Beaver Falls to institute a study to determine the feasibility of establishing a system of lodges and cottages in Pennsylvania state parks. The feasibility study, Denison said, would base its conclusions on reports that would be received from the 22 states already offering such accommodations.

Evidently neither Denison nor Kline are aware of the fact that Pennsylvania was one of the first states to recognize the vast potential such accommodations would offer as a tourist attraction, as well as one of the first states to actually get a construction program under way.

The program may have started as early as when Gifford Pinchot was Secretary of Forest and Waters and certainly continued up to the administration of G. Albert Stewart.

Two types of construction seems to have been preferred. At such state parks as S. B. Elliott, located on or near main highways, the overnight type of cabin was featured; while at the more remote parks, such as Parker Dam, the vacation cottage got the preference.

Preview of 1970 Census

The U.S. Census Bureau in Suitland, Md., is now moving toward final preparations for the next nationwide head count in early 1970. "Preview" censuses already have been conducted in various parts of the U. S. to test out new procedures -- ranging from mail-in, do-it-yourself head-counts to a variety of unprecedented, probing questions on our living habits, incomes, jobs, etc. But even now, a full 1½ years before the new statistics are to be gathered, many of the most eagerly awaited facts and figures can be reliably projected. Already known are the key changes in the U. S. population and in our living patterns since the last census in 1960.

For instance, I'll give you the one central figure on the age of our population which is so often misquoted, misused and abused.

This is it: In 1970, half of our population will be 27 or under, compared with a median age of nearly 29 in 1960.

Now here are other major 1960 - 1970 trends which will emerge from the next census:

Humphrey's Three Assets

(c) N. Y. Times News Service NEW YORK — At first glance, the election campaign may look like a runaway, or at least a sure thing, for Richard Nixon and the Republicans. In fact, just listing Hubert Humphrey's problems can make good Democrats blanch.

He himself widely regarded as a stooge for the unpopular President Johnson—who is down to only 35 per cent public approval in the Gallup Poll—Humphrey is the candidate of a party and an administration identified with a war that 53 per cent of the people did not support, as measured by the same poll. He was nominated at a convention surrounded by the kind of violence and unrest that seems almost to typify American society today, and when it was all over the most powerful local Democrat in the country—Mayor Daley—had a blackened reputation, the young people of the country were more alienated than ever, and Humphrey's chief rival, Eugene McCarthy, still refused to support him against Nixon.

All Humphrey needs to resemble Job, therefore, is a good case of boils. Nevertheless, while his case may be desperate, it is by no means hopeless and he has at least three unusual assets—Nixon, George Wallace, and Johnson. No Republican, it has often been said, unites the Democrats the way Nixon does and already this Nixonlash appears to be pulling Humphrey's riven party more nearly together; a recent recruit was Steve Mitchell, McCarthy's floor manager at Chicago.

Moreover, those Democrats most deeply offended by Humphrey's association with Johnson and by his one-time enthusiasm for and present acquiescence in Johnson's Vietnam policy are those most likely to be concerned about another crucial international issue—the arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union. On that question, as on Vietnam, the deliberate choice of Nixon over Humphrey by the Democrats will require a remarkable act of will.

As for Wallace, without his heavy-breathing presence in the race, Humphrey might as well go home to Waverly and raise turkeys. This is despite the fact that a lot of nominal Democrats—union members, for one example—will vote for Wallace. But the real question is who they would have voted for if Wallace were not in the race.

The answer in most cases is almost certainly Nixon, whose tough stance on "law and order"—no doubt re-enforced by the television images of the upheavals in Chicago—and long record of hard-line anti-communism would make him a more palatable alternative than Humphrey to a Wallace voter.

Nixon sources have disclosed that their "grand design" for winning this year is to hold the 26 states—including the two big ones, Ohio and California—their man won in 1960 and to add 49 more electoral votes from among those of New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Texas, Michigan, Missouri and New Jersey.

There are several troubles with this plan, including the fact that there will be no issue of religious prejudice against Nixon's opponent this year—an issue that in 1960 clearly cost Kennedy several states, possibly including California. Another problem is that the list of seven states Nixon hopes to add to his 1960 total includes only three—Texas, Illinois and Missouri—naturally sympathetic to his candidacy; and in Texas and Illinois, Lyndon Johnson, John Connally and Richard Daley ought to make any Republican think twice about winning.

But by far the biggest trouble with the Nixon strategy is Wallace's candidacy. Take California, which Nixon carried in 1960 only by winning the absentee balloting and which he subsequently lost by a million votes in the 1962 gubernatorial race. Humphrey is clearly in trouble with liberal California Democrats, and in view of Ronald Reagan's victory in 1966, Nixon might well be regarded as the favorite in that vital state—except that he and Wallace will split in some proportion the votes that might otherwise have gone entirely to Nixon, and Humphrey might get a slim plurality on the votes of loyalist Democrats.

MASON DENISON

Reliefers And Jobs

HARRISBURG — The old saw "Why should I work if they take my earnings from my relief check?" isn't going to fit into the Pennsylvania scene anymore, according to the people in the Public Welfare Department.

Actually, for several years now reliefers have been getting more and more in the way of earned income write-offs so that they could take part-time and in some cases low-paid full time work and still get relief checks if they had large families to support.

Now a new system has been adopted by welfare boss Dr. Thomas W. Georges, Jr., to give the person on relief a little better shake if he has enough gumption to find part-time work. And in some cases, even if he doesn't look for work, the finger of "work incentive programs" may point him out to get on a job, or at least to get on a payroll in a training status.

The Public Welfare Department would have had to put the new incentive program into effect July 1, 1969, under Federal law, to continue to get about half of the state's relief bill paid by Uncle Sam. But to fit in with a new work-training program being started by Labor and Industry Secretary John K. Tabor, and to take up some slack created when many of local anti-poverty programs curtailed their generous doing at the end of the 1967-68 fiscal year last July 1, Dr. Georges pushed the additional benefits up more than ten months and started the new way of figuring incentives August 26.

Actually, the work incentive plan applies only to those on Aid to Dependent Children and General Assistance, for as a practical matter there are not too many wage earners among the disabled, the aged and the blind. Some of the blind, however, do very well with vending stand operations, but they have adjustment procedures in their blind pension program.

Of the 433,145 persons on relief last March (when the workers were counted), 5824 were listed as non-handicapped persons able to do a full day's work of one sort or another. Another 8331 could do some work, but they were rated as handicapped.

Before the August 26th change, the person on relief who worked and earned some money was allowed up to $50 a month without having the additional income charged against the relief check. This was to cover work expenses such as additional food, transportation and a d clothing.

Now the first $30 of earned income, plus one-third of the remainder, in any one month, is the basis for allowing work incentives. At first blush this sounds like a worse deal than the flat $50, but actually it's better. That is because the figuring is on a net income, with all sorts of expenses "off the top" before the actual figure is reached.

Among the costs of working deducted in arriving at a net income are tools, materials, special uniforms, payroll deductions for taxes and social security over which the worker has no control, transportation costs to and from work and cost of care of children or sick or disabled members of the family "if care cannot be provided by the members of the family, and no other sound plan can be made to obtain the care without cost".

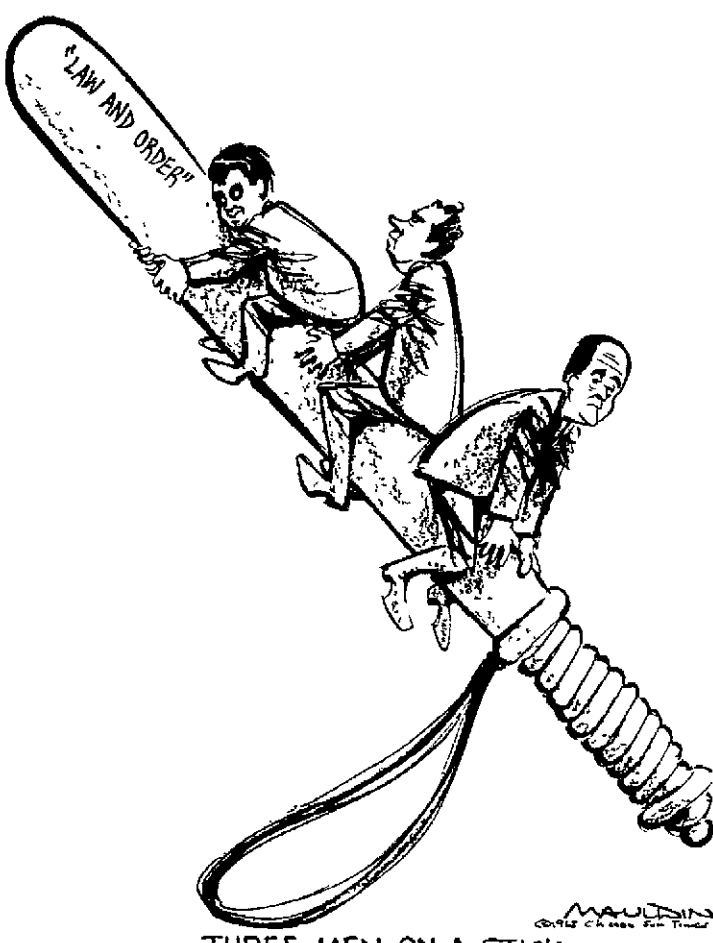

As an example of how the new system works, take a family of six with a total allowance of $250 a month. An allowance is what the welfare people figure the family budget is under welfare rates, which run approximately 71 percent of what the department itself says is needed for "health and decency". This is slated to go to 90 percent January 1, 1969, although some politically-minded persons are talking about getting the increases before the magic election date in November.

Suppose the reliefer earned $210 during the month, and the welfare people allowed him $30 for work expenses, bringing his net income to $180.

The first $30 of the $180 would be excused, leaving a balance of $150. Then one-third of the $150 would also be written-off as not chargeable to his relief check. This is $50, plus the original $30, making his total incentive deduction $80. The $80 is then added to the $30 in work expenses, so that a total of $110 is deducted from his gross income of $210, leaving $100 in "adjusted income" to be taken from his assistance check. The check would have been $250 without any work. With work it is $150, but the $210 actually earned boosts the monthly income for the family of six -- wages plus some relief -- to $360.

DREW PEARSON

Can Make Democracy Live

(Editor's Note — Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to Cartha Deloach, assistant director of the FBI and an executive of the American Legion.)

Washington, D. C.
Sept. 3, 1968
Mr. Cartha Deloach
The American Legion National Convention
New Orleans, La.

Dear Deke;

I am writing to you as one of the leaders of the American Legion because I recall so vividly the wonderful job the Legion did in the years following the war when we combined to send the Tide of Toys to the children of war-torn Europe.

It seems to me that the Legion, on the eve of its 50th anniversary convention, faces another great opportunity, this one right here at home.

Today several thousand Negro veterans are returning from Vietnam where they fought valiantly side-by-side with white soldiers. But back here they frequently find themselves without jobs, without the necessary training, without advice and without friends.

Most distressing of all, many of them feel unwanted in their community.

In my opinion, and as a member of the Legion, this presents us with an opportunity which no other organization can meet so well.

I recognize, of course, that this idea may present problems to some posts in some parts of the country. But long ago we met the problem of the "40 and 8" and kicked it out because it refused to drop its policy of segregation.

I recognize also that the Legion has had a reputation of concentrating on hi-jinks, water bags, electric prods, etc., at its national convention which, however, is unfair. It was the "40 and 8" which chiefly went in for tomfoolery. Nevertheless, the link between the Legion and frivolity has prevailed in the public mind.

Regardless of public impressions, however, an extremely important problem lies ahead for the nation and for all veterans.

Approximately 40,000 Negro veterans have now returned from Vietnam. Their record in Vietnam rates as high as any white soldiers. Because in proportion to the percentage of our population, more Negroes were in the front line than whites.

Negroes comprise ten per cent of the population, and Defense Department figures show that Negroes comprise 9.8 per cent of the troops in Vietnam. However, Negroes make up 20 per cent of the combat troops, and 25 per cent of the specially trained elite units such as front line supervisors and paratroopers.

Negro soldiers killed in battle comprise 14 per cent of the total casualties.

This is a record of which the Negro race can be proud.

Furthermore, every white combat soldier testifies to the courage of Negro troops. Naturally they return to the United States proud of their record and feeling that they deserve some recognition.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

On Dealing With Rioting

I dare say that the resentment and bitterness at Chicago last week had something to do with the public's philosophical unwillingness to decide, really, how to deal with rioters.

The outrage, so lavishly displayed on television, was only one part ideological. There are those who are always against the cops, on the traditionalist grounds that associate policemen with the repressive establishments of history. But even those who have worked their way out of that emotional snare were horrified at what they saw, because what they saw included the redundant blow of the nightstick, at the head or shoulder or rump of a victim already incapacitated; included, on one notorious occasion, policemen calling for the vacating of a street at a speed at which, literally, unpracticed sprinters could not comply.

But then the police and their supporters counterattacked, and their general case was compelling. They began by boldly challenging the terminological myths — on the one hand the big sadistic Gestapo-minded policemen, on the other the sun-spreckled, gentle-minded young idealists; Otto Preminger versus Harvey. That didn't take too long, what with the (belated) revelation that the gentle folk had taken intensive training in the arts of public disturbance, featuring, among other select disciplines, how to capture public sympathy by provoking police into the use of unnecessary force.

The avowed intention of the high command of the rioters was to paralyze the convention. Most of those who expressed themselves on the question dismissed the strategic objective as palpably idealistic and, therefore, unrelated to any justification for what the police did. Still, the confidence of the Anti's was shattered. At this point the convention was adjourned, leaving questions unanswered.

1) Do we really desire to enforce police regulations adamantly, or do too many people suspect that such regulations, promulgated under pressure, are arbitrary and constricting, and therefore lacking in sufficient moral authority to justify automatic acceptance? There were those in Chicago who were saying, in effect: was it worth the bloodshed to hold the line at

(c) N. Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — Is there one other person anywhere in America who is not furious? In a state this big there must be, but why do you never meet him? How pleasant it would be to spend an hour with him. "Hi, Pete," you'd say. "How's the world treating you?" And he'd say, "Not bad," or, "The world never treats," or something inoffensive like that. You used to run into people like him all the time, but they all seem to be gone now. Nowadays you hardly ever meet anybody who isn't boiling mad, and when you do it turns out he's in high dudgeon.

The worst thing about an American in fury is that he likes company. Nothing fuels him to higher rage than a person who refuses to respond to him in kind. You are sitting in the corner, for example, with a perfectly lovely widow and she looks at you with eyes flashing fire and says, "Isn't it awful about the Supreme Court?"

If you want to continue the association, the last thing in the world to say is, "I never think about the Supreme Court more than once every three years." No sir. That widow is almost certainly so mad about the Supreme Court that anyone who doesn't think of it at least six times a day in a way that makes his hate juices suppurate is going to suffer a loud harangue for his serenity.

It would also be a mistake, of course, to agree with her too loudly with a hearty, "We'll never have law and order in this country until we've abolished the Supreme Court," because almost surely a Negro who hasn't had anybody to vent his spleen on for ten or fifteen minutes will overhear it and start hooting, "Burn, Honkie, burn!"

His goal is to enrage you to such a pitch that you will stand up and declare, "You can't call me a Honkie, man. I've been to college!" Whereupon somebody so furious that he will leave the country if George Wallace isn't elected will snarl, "If there's one thing I hate, it's a pseudo-intellectual."

As things progress in this manner, you become a sure certain bet to go home and beat the children with cries of, "Why don't you get haircuts and quit ruining the country!"

Until a few years ago, this kind of social terror was pretty much confined to visits into the Southland. After settling down at Aunt Clara's in the Cotton Belt, a few of the neighbors would drop in and after awhile somebody would say with bated voice, "Something has got to be done about these darkies."

And if you tried to change the subject by answering, "That sure is a mighty pretty cotton field out there," somebody else would say, "Sure is, and don't you think these darkies are getting out of hand?" Angry themselves, they insisted that you either join them or, by disagreeing, give them the opportunity to get angry with you.

Now the entire country has contracted the habit on the grand scale, so that it is almost impossible not to outrage somebody by being tolerant. Wear your hair short, and you invite denunciation as a tool of the establishment. Wear it long, and you invite a nightstick's crease. Be white, and you make somebody's blood boil at the sight of a Honkie. Be black, and you outrage ten million taxpayers.

Talk to a cop, and you incense a Hippie. Talk to a Hippie, and you infuriate a cop. Say a kind word for Lyndon Johnson, and the children read you a lecture. Say a good word for the children, and Mayor Daley teaches you a good lesson.

In such circumstances, life necessarily becomes a strain. Angry men and women seething with rage trap you in corners and cross-examine you to see if you are furious about the same things that infuriate them and dare you to get angry about something quite different and become intolerable if you insist upon not getting angry at anything at all.

"Not angry about anything at all? It's people like you that are destroying this country! No real American can watch what's happening in the country today without wanting to bust somebody right in the snout!"

"Pseudo-intellectual!"
"Burn, baby, burn!"
"Ramsay-Clark lover!"
"Establishment flink!"
"Non-supporter of your police!"

Ah Pete, where are you, and how's the world treating you? You're so right. The world never treats.

Sincerely,
Drew Pearson

On Dealing With Rioting

the roar at Columbia, suggesting,

3) That Americans really haven't made up their minds concerning aspects of the problem which absolutely require attention before we can handle such phenomena as the Chicago riots with any sense of self-assurance. But our minds are not disposed to seek resolution. What it comes down to, I think, is that the opinion-makers prefer a highly plastic line between the law and the defiers of the law, believing as they do that salients struck across the line by the defiers of it are matters that require urgent democratic attention; that if young rioters in Chicago throw themselves into police lines, they are saying to us things which we ought to hear. I suspect that that is why if Thomas A. Edison were to appear on the scene tomorrow with an anti-riot weapon which would totally immobilize rioters without causing them as much pain, physical or intellectual, as a minor sunburn or an editorial in the New York Times, Mr. Edison and his machine would be quickly proscribed by law, in the company of that long list of unpopular riot-controlling weapons which have been serially pounced upon, from fire hoses, to cattle prods, to tear gas, to mace.

Soviets Begin Propaganda Campaign To Stamp Out Liberal Thinking

An immense propaganda campaign is in progress in the Soviet Union, clearly aimed at tightening Communist party control and stamping out tendencies toward liberal thinking. Reminiscent of the Stalin days, it suggests the extent to which the Kremlin was shaken by events in Czechoslovakia.

Youth is the main target in a drive keyed to the 100th birthday anniversary of Lenin, Bolshevism's founder. It indicates that Soviet leaders are worried about their own people as well as the Czechoslovaks.

This concern seems not to center on any possibility of a convulsive movement for liberalization in the Prague style, but rather about a prospect of slow but steady erosion threatening the "Socialist" system.

Since Lenin was born in April 1870 the anniversary is 90 months away. But the campaign has been going on since early this year. It increased in tempo as Russian and Soviet bloc troops prepared to occupy Czechoslovakia.

Last month the Soviet party, in a decree on observation of the Lenin anniversary, demanded a total propaganda-education drive to strengthen party authority and crack down on "anti-Socialist" elements.

A few days ago Pravda carried a long article warning that dark forces allied with revisionists were stepping up ideological warfare against "Socialist achievements," attempting to subvert the system from within. Pravda said these forces included "reactionaries of all types, Fascists, right Socialists, nationalists, chauvinists and Zionists." The reference to Zionists fitted in with Soviet press attacks on Czechoslovak figures with Jewish backgrounds.

The "dark forces," said the Communist party paper, try to represent developments in Soviet literature, art and economic reform as "divergence, protest and discontent," in attempts to sow mistrust of the Soviet party and weaken internal durability.

Obviously, this will be a sustained campaign. In the background are such things as concern over a rising tide of crime and corruption in the Soviet Union, an ideological drive in the schools to implant unquestion-

Gov. Terry Says Guard Stopped Summer Rioting

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Delaware Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr. said Wednesday that the National Guard "stopped at least two riots" in Wilmington by its presence there the entire summer, and indicated the troops are to remain on duty for some time to come.

Terry pointed to the arrest of six alleged members of a "Black Liberation Army" during target practice and discovery of an arms cache, and said: "What I've been telling people since April is now coming to light."

He referred to opposition to his decision to keep Guardsmen in Wilmington after they helped quell riots there in early April. "I had everybody against me but the people," Terry told a news conference.

Among those who asked that Guardsmen be withdrawn from the city, or at least be kept in armories and off the streets, was Mayor John E. Babiarz, like Terry a Democrat, Republican.

can leaders also disagreed with the governor.

However, Babiarz and others relented this week, saying there was a need for the Guard after the arrests and seizure of 3,000 rounds of ammunition at the home of a black militant.

The governor, who said militants are "interested only in the dole," said the crackdown would continue.

"We've known about the liberation army, and thought it was going to take form on the streets on the Fourth of July. For some time we've also known about the arms."

The governor, who said police had difficulty in finding caches, said militants have "as many arms stored away as the National Guard has, probably."

The governor also said that he would try to cut off federal funds to the Wilmington Youth Emergency Action Council. Four of the six militants arrested during the weekend were council workers. A truck said to be a council van, and containing marijuana, was being used by the men, police said.

Officials won't say how many Guardsmen are involved in the city of about 90,000 persons, but unofficial estimates are that the troops number upwards of 50.

The governor also said he had not decided when to withdraw Guardsmen from Rehoboth Beach, where they were stationed in event of trouble during the summer. About half a dozen Guardsmen also augment Dover City police at night.

De Gaulle, Cabinet Okay Education Reform Bill

(c) N. Y. Times News Service

PARIS — President Charles de Gaulle and his cabinet approved Wednesday a measure that will give students, teachers and the public a large share of control over schools for the first time since Napoleon.

The reform bill, which will be presented to the overwhelming Gaullist National Assembly at a special session late this month, grants a large part of the educational demands of the student upheaval that rocked France last May.

The same session will adopt 1969 budget aimed at healing the effects of the general strike of labor sparked by the student movement.

"Autonomy and participation" are the theme of the reform bill, as outlined to the cabinet by Edgar Faure, the education minister. "We want innovation—even audacity," a government spokesman said.

The present system, established under Napoleon, gives the education ministry and its appointees virtually complete control over school curricula and budgets throughout the system. It also controls hiring, except for university faculties, where professors occupying lifetime "chairs" vote on new appointments.

The new system will grant wide autonomy at three levels: The "educational unit," the region and the nation. Each level will have a council, in which students, teachers and outside notables will be represented in roughly equal numbers.

The councils will have an advisory and planning role, but are also to receive some not yet defined powers of decision. Faure also assured that the teachers—that is, the faculty as a whole—would have clear authority over hiring and promotions.

In this he firmly rejected one of the demands frequently raised by student militants last May, for a student vote on faculty appointments. On the other hand, he awarded students primary authority over "social and cultural" matters. This referred among other things to dormitory rules and management of student restaurants. It appeared to imply that Faure would keep his promise to permit political activity on campus, which has stirred opposition among conservatives.

The authority of the "chair" holders will be abolished. In their place, Faure envisioned the establishment of small "units" in which "participation" would be practiced. This appeared to foreshadow the introduction of strong subject departments, long advocated by visiting American professors among others.

The reform bill does not attack the most glaring of educational grievances, the overcrowding of universities. This will be attacked by the budget, which will call for a sharp increase in school appropriations, and by the use of emergency quarters, such as the former NATO building here.

Crowding will nevertheless be worse than ever when classes resume in October and November, because a record number of applicants were given passing grades as an outcome of the troubles last spring.

The reform bill, however, lessens the possibility that a large number of students will heed the call of ultramilitants for a repetition of the May strike.

Bandit Improvises After His Paper Bag Bursts

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A bandit scooped diamonds and other valuables into a cardboard box after the paper bag he was throwing them in burst, and escaped with jewelry and cash Wednesday in a holdup at a Sewickley jewelry store.

His armed partner ordered the owner of the Thomas Jewelry Store and two clerks to their hands and knees in a back room while the other robber rifled the jewelry trays.

"I was in the back of the store when they walked in," said Harriet Thomas. "They asked for Mr. Thomas but he's been dead for several years. Then before I knew it one of them yelled 'Alright Mrs. Thomas, this is a stick up!'"

The owner said she and Martha Milligan and Rebecca Minemeyer huddled on the floor of the back room, the bandit standing over them, while the other rifled cabinets and a safe.

Mrs. Thomas said the man went through the store stuffing watches, diamonds and other precious stone rings into a paper bag. She said the bag broke and he scooped the loot into a cardboard carton.

"The man holding the gun yelled to his partner 'Did you lock the front door?'" Mrs. Thomas said. "But apparently he didn't because two girls came into the store. The man then yelled 'Hurry up you've got enough' and they ran out the back door."

Mrs. Thomas said they stole "thousands of dollars worth" of diamonds and about $800 in cash.

She said the bandits were Negroes. "I didn't get a good look at the face of the one holding the gun on us," she said. "He was holding me on the floor by the back of the neck and I only got a good look at his feet."

Steps Proposed To Ease Air Traffic Congestion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department proposed Wednesday the first federal restrictions ever to be applied to ease air traffic congestion at major public airports.

The new rules, when adopted, will set limits on the number of aircraft that may land within one hour at the five major overcrowded airports serving New York City, Washington and Chicago.

At New York's Kennedy airport, the field in effect will be reserved exclusively for airline use for the three busiest hours — from 5 to 8 p.m. — each day.

Strict requirements as to speed, equipment and size of crew also in effect will keep most private planes and other small aircraft off all five airfields whenever the airports are experiencing any heavy flow of scheduled airline traffic.

The Federal Aviation Administration will conduct a public hearing on the issues Sept. 25.

However, the airlines and other users concede that restrictions of some type probably will go into effect by around Nov. 1.

The new regulations are designed to promote an orderly flow of the nation's heaviest air traffic.

They are to be in effect under terms requiring the use of flight instruments, and will apply from 6 a.m. to midnight daily.

For New York's Kennedy airport, the FAA proposed to permit up to 80 landings and take-offs an hour, as against the limit of 65 initially proposed last July.

Except for the 5-to-8 p.m. rush hours reserved for the airlines, 70 of the hourly flights would be reserved for scheduled airlines, five for air taxis and five for other aircraft.

Chicago's O'Hare airport which with its dual runway system handles up to 217 operations an hour, would be restricted to 135 an hour, with the airlines allowed 115, air taxis 10, and other planes 10.

Washington National and the two other New York area airports — LaGuardia and Newark — would have 60 flights an hour limits, with the airlines accounting for 48 at LaGuardia and 40 each at Newark and Washington. Air taxi services would have 10 slots an hour at Newark, eight at National, and six at LaGuardia, and other aircraft would fill in the remaining positions.

The current limits at National — 40 airline and 20 non-airline flights an hour — have been only loosely observed.

The new rules that would keep many small aircraft out of the five congested areas, from 6 a.m. to midnight, are those requiring use of two pilots, maintenance of a speed of not less than 172 miles an hour in the approach zones, and operation of a radar beacon transponder capable of providing traffic controllers automatically with identification and altitude information.

Detective Admits Guilt For Racial Slurs

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frank L. Rizzo, Philadelphia police commissioner, said Wednesday one of three detectives suspended when they were accused of shouting obscenities and racial slurs has admitted he, alone, was responsible.

As a result, said Rizzo, he ordered disciplinary action against the other two dropped and sent them back to work.

The alleged incident occurred outside a building where a Black Power conference was underway last week.

Rizzo said Detective Alfred Baker, a policeman for 13 years, admitted he alone was responsible and that James Bolton, a 15-year veteran, and Raymond Brown, a 7-year veteran, were innocent.

"He said he was sorry," said Rizzo, "and regretted what had been said. He said he realized he acted improperly and there was nothing he could do to undo what he had done. He wanted to clear the other two."

Rizzo said Baker was suspended for an additional five days, making a total of 15 days without pay, and will be transferred to the West Detective Division when he returns to duty.

Rizzo canceled a police board of inquiry into the matter. "The incident is now closed," he said.

Detective Believes All Crimes Can Be Solved 'If You Keep Working'

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "I go on the theory," said Detective Earl Son, "that all crimes can be solved if you proceed correctly. You just work and go on working."

In November, 1960, Son, now 56, was assigned to help find who committed the rape murder of Beverly Ann Allen and the knife slaying of her college sweetheart, Larry Ralph Peyton, both 19.

Over the years, Son's hair turned nearly white. His 6-year-old twin son and daughter grew into teenagers. He traveled 107,000 miles running down clues, Multnomah County's bills for the prolonged search reached $250,000.

When Son wasn't away somewhere on his dogged manhunt—Tucson, Denver, Reno, Chicago, Seattle, Los Angeles, Asheville, N.C.—he would take the case home with him.

"My wife was understanding. She's wonderful," said the tall, slightly stooped detective, who has the kindly manner of a family doctor.

"I'd sit around the house thinking what had been done, what had not been done. I'd lie awake nights wondering where I'd gone wrong."

At last, on Aug. 19, Son decided he was ready to make arrests. He and a detective colleague who had shared the investigation for the past three years brought in three men and charged them with the double murder.

The accused are Carl Frederick Jorgenson, 28; his brother, Edward Ralph Jorgenson, 36, both of Portland, and Robert Gordon Brom, 28, of Salem.

Because of Oregon's legal restrictions on pretrial discussion of criminal cases, Son cannot disclose now what prompted him to arrest the Jorgensons and Brom.

"My work was just investigation," he said. "The courts will decide if the crime was solved."

Peyton's body, bearing 23 stab wounds, was found in his car on a lovers' lane at the edge of Portland's 3,500-acre Forest Park.

Miss Allen, who had been spending the Thanksgiving weekend in the Peyton home, had been with Peyton on Saturday evening. They did not return that night. His slaying came to light the next day.

Six weeks later Miss Allen's body was found where it had been tossed over the edge of a mountain road 40 miles west of Portland. She had been raped and strangled.

"At the start," Son recalled, "I was one man in a group of six teams of detectives. We worked up to 18 hours a day for months. Then it quieted to a routine."

The file in the Peyton-Allen case grew. A filing cabinet was moved close to Son's desk and all information went into it.

"The case was kept alive by publicity," Son said. "Newspaper stories on the anniversaries were always followed by new reports. Each had to be checked out."

Two years ago another in the series of newspaper stories about the Peyton-Allen case was followed by information which Son said "first pointed us in the direction we took" to make the arrests.

"If the defense can come up with anything to prove those arrested are not guilty," Son said, "We will help them. All we are after is the truth."

Relief Flights Carrying Tons of Food to Biafra

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
SAO TOME—An average of eight relief flights a night carrying a total of about 65 tons of food and medical supplies have been getting into famine-stricken Biafra from this Portuguese colony in the Gulf of Guinea. But officials here say 10 times more aid is needed.

The officials also said that the most urgently needed assistance for the Biafran relief movement is a fully equipped Hercules cargo aircraft that can unload in five minutes or parachute supplies from low altitude, pierced steel planking for buildings, runways and unloading ramps, radar, and dropping gear for the C-46-type cargo aircraft.

The committee of International Church Relief Organizations, a Roman Catholic and Protestant group, has urged its home office to suspend Biafran food shipments temporarily because warehouses here are full. There is now a total of some 3,000 tons of foodstocks piled high here waiting to be shipped to Nigeria's secessionist former eastern region.

A shipment of 262 tons of supplies from the United States Catholic Relief Services arrived here this week. A West German ship with 1,500 tons of food supplies from Irish Caritas, a Roman Catholic Relief organization, also arrived here this week.

Medical relief supplies, however, are still insufficient. An airplane from Italian Caritas is expected here Thursday with badly needed multivitamins, blood plasma, antibiotics and medicine for malaria and dysentery.

Eight planes are currently running the regular Sao Tome-Biafra relief run and airport facilities, particularly inside Biafra, cannot handle much more.

Four DC-7 cargo planes chartered by German Catholic and Protestant groups fly in nine tons a plane nightly.

A Swedish charter transair runs two DC-7's almost every night for Scandinavian Roman Catholic and Protestant churches.

The Scandinavian Catholic and Protestant churches have also chartered a C-46 cargo aircraft and a DC-6 which both carry five tons a trip.

A spokesman for the Sao Tome relief committee said that if church organizations could obtain the necessary equipment to improve landing and discharging facilities relief flights could be increased from 8 to 30 each night.

Catie Ball Overcomes Mononucleosis, and Is Olympic Threat

NEW YORK (AP) — Six months ago Catie Ball, the world record holder in the 100 and 200-meter breaststroke, didn't think she'd ever swim again.

Today she's faster than ever, thrilled at making the U.S. Olympic swimming team, and looking forward to a possible three gold medals in the Olympics at Mexico City, Oct. 12-27.

At the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg in 1967, the pretty willowy blonde from Jacksonville, Fla., won three gold medals—in the 100 and 200 breaststroke and as a member of the world record-breaking 400-meter medley relay team. Sam's the favorite to duplicate that feat in Mexico City.

But last Feb. 1, Catie was stricken with mononucleosis, a strength-sapping disease.

"I was really down," said Catie. "I never thought I'd be able to swim in competition again."

Seven weeks later, Catie got back in the water. Under the watchful eye of Coach George Campbell, she regained her strength and her form.

In the recently concluded Olympic Trials at Los Angeles, the 5-foot-7, 129-pound high schooler won the 100 and 200 breaststroke, beating her own world records with times of 1:14.3 and 2:38.5.

"This was my dream," said Catie, "making the Olympic team. It's harder to make our team than to win a medal in the Olympics. It was what I have been working so hard for the past eight years."

Four More Apply for Horse Racing Licenses

HARRISBURG (AP) — The newly formed State Horse Racing Commission, appointed to supervise the growth of flat racing in Pennsylvania, announced four new license applications Wednesday.

The applicants and their plans are:

— Fort Pitt Park, Inc., of Pittsburgh, which wants to serve the Allegheny County area with a one-mile track in Robinson and Moon townships.

— Lakeland Racing Association, Inc., of Pittsburgh, planning to build a one mile track on 200 acres in Fairview Township, Erie County.

— Montco Raceway, Inc., of Philadelphia, applied for a license to lease Pocono Downs harness racing track in Luzerne County for the purpose of seasonal conversion for flat racing. In the event the commission rules against this and other contemplated conversions, Montco has agreed to purchase a 380-acre tract in Bear Creek Township, Luzerne County, where it would build a new track for flat racing.

— Man O' War Racing Association, Inc., of Philadelphia, a combine of hospitals in the Delaware County area which wants to lease Liberty Bell park in Northeast Philadelphia on a seasonal basis to run

Penn State Scrimmages

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Penn State's first-team offensive and defensive units traded touchdowns Wednesday in the club's initial football scrimmage of the fall practice season.

The offensive score was chalked up by senior halfback Bob Campbell on a six-yard run culminating a 65-yard drive.

Defensive halfback Paul Johnson, a junior, scored on a 66-yard return of a Campbell punt.

The first and second offensive drives also scored against the "second-team" defensive unit. Senior fullback Tom Cherry tallied on a one-yard plunge as did junior fullback Don Abbey.

Coach Joe Paterno called the scrimmage an "inconsistent" performance in most phases, but was pleased with the physical condition of his squad.

Paterno also took heart that Campbell, Abbey and linebacker Mike Reid came out of the contact work without aggravating the knee injuries they sustained last year.

Quarterback Chuck Burkhardt, being groomed for the starting assignment, completed 10 of 17 passes for 83 yards, with no touchdowns and two interceptions.

Susquehanna Has Small Time Schedule, But Boasts Staggs

SELINGROVE, Pa. (AP) — Susquehanna University's football schedule includes the likes of Western Maryland, Otterbein and Wittenberg. Yet the small Central Pennsylvania institution has college football's greatest immortal in its Sports Hall of Fame: Amos Alonzo Staggs.

While Staggs' 41 years of coaching at the University of Chicago and 15 at the College of the Pacific are well known, many football followers remain unaware that the great master spent six years at Susquehanna — from 1947 to 1952.

Actually Staggs — who died in 1965 at age 102 — was co-coach with his son, A. A. Staggs Jr. The younger Staggs, now a vice president of a Chicago investment firm, spent 26 years at the university, many as athletic director, football and basketball coach.

"Mr. Staggs senior would handle the offense and Staggs junior the defense," recalled Jim Hazlett, the current Susquehanna football coach who played for Staggs in 1949-50-51. "We used a single wing style of play with a flanker back and a split end. In 1951 we were undefeated, and that club still holds the passing record at Susquehanna."

Despite his age — 85 when he came to Susquehanna — Hazlett remembered Staggs jogging along with the team or participating in the calisthenics. His six-year record was 21-19-3, but the last three years were 14-5-1.

"He was a quiet man in game talks," Hazlett said. "He wasn't a Knute Rockne type. He got us ready during the week, and maybe would say a few words relative to experiences in the past. When Staggs spoke you could hear a pin drop. If you weren't going to do a job for him, you weren't going to do it for anybody."

Dr. Russell Gilbert, professor of German at Susquehanna and a member of the Athletic Council during the Staggs years, remembered, "He would criticize a boy by being firm but never harsh."

"Once a back was running a play in practice," Gilbert said, "Staggs ran right along with him, keeping up the same speed. At the end of the play he told the boy, 'You know, young man, I am in the high 80's.' The player, knowing he didn't run hard enough, just hung his head."

Dr. William Russ, a retired history professor, lived on the same block as Staggs on Faculty Row.

"He was philosophic about losing," Russ said. "He was more interested in building men than in winning. He liked to win, but if his players had done their best, he was satisfied."

Staggs' trademark at Susquehanna was a battered felt hat, that he often rolled up and put in his pocket. The hat was given to the school, and is now known as the "Old Hat" trophy, which Susquehanna plays for in its annual Kiwanis Charities game. This year's contest will be Sept. 28 against Western Maryland.

Susquehanna's Hall of Fame was organized last year as part of the 75th anniversary celebration of football at the university. A maximum of three new members will be chosen each year.

A COSTLY PUNCH
FOUNTAIN, Colo. (AP)—Bettors collected on show tickets on a horse that ran out of the money in a quarter horse event at Pikes Peak Turf Club. No. 9 finished third, but a state steward operating the tote board punched No. 7 instead. So the track redeemed show tickets on both horses. The error cost the track $129.60.

GOLFING WITH Arnold Palmer

GO's first Million Dollar P.G.A. Winner

HOW TO ESCAPE FROM SAND ON FIRST TRY

How often have you left the ball in the hazard when trying to escape from sand? And how often have you criticized yourself for hitting too far behind the ball in so doing?

Quite probably you did hit behind the ball too far and, thus, left it in the trap. However, it may be that your position of contact with the sand was correct. Perhaps you left the shot in the bunker because your club cut too deeply. This cause of "left" sand shots is all too common.

Your clubhead cuts too deeply into the sand if it "closes" in the impact area. Even a slightly closed clubface will cause you to come up short on these shots. If your hands have turned over on the shot (illustration #1), you will probably have cut too deeply with a closed clubface.

On sand shots it is vital that your hands continue to face the target until the ball is well on its way (illustration #2). This will help assure a normal depth of clubhead penetration.

Steelers Suffer Injuries But Bill Austin's Outlook Remains Optimistic

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — Bill Austin, his Pittsburgh Steelers almost all healthy again, said Wednesday a crippling series of injuries hasn't dimmed his outlook for the National Football League season.

Austin said the Steelers would have 10 of their 11 regulars ready both on offense and defense in Saturday night's final exhibition game against Washington at Norfolk, Va.

The rest of the injured starters, halfback Don Shy and middle linebacker Bill Saul, won't be ready until after the start of the regular season — so this week's lineup is the one Pittsburgh will open the season with Sept. 15 against New York.

"Things haven't gone as well as I hoped they would, because of the injury problem," said the usually optimistic Austin. "But we've gotten a chance to look at a lot of people who may help us."

Still, Austin said he expects the Steelers to improve on last year's 4-9-1 record and challenge for first place in the Century Division of the Eastern Conference.

"I'm still optimistic," despite losing three of four exhibitions, Austin said. One of those losses was a shocking 19-3 setback to the new Cincinnati Bengals.

But Austin points out that at no time in the four games have the Steelers had their regular defensive backfield intact and that they played the last two with seven regulars sidelined.

"I've never seen a year where we had so many injuries — injuries to key personnel," he said.

Offensively, split end J. R. Wilburn, flanker Roy Jefferson, fullback Earl Gros, No. 2 quarterback Dick Shiner and Shy have all been hurt.

On defense, it was Saul and back Paul Marth and Bob Hohn. Other players, including cornerback Marv Woodson and tight end Tony Jeter, missed two weeks of camp because of Army Reserve or National Guard commitments.

Austin said the Steelers still need another speedy, consistent running back, but added he was pleased with the development of several rookies.

He mentioned specifically defensive backs Bob Wade and Lou Harris, who carried a big load in the absence of Marth, Hohn and Woodson; offensive tackle Mike Taylor, defensive end Ernie Ruple, halfback Rocky Bleier and Jon Henderson, who started as a defensive back but now is playing flanker.

The acquisition of punter Bobby Walden from the Minnesota Vikings solved one of Pittsburgh's biggest problems, Austin said.

Meanwhile, the Steelers reached this week's NFL player limit of 43 Wednesday, asking waivers on four players and acquiring one.

Pittsburgh picked up Dick Capp, a second-year linebacker, from St. Louis, and waived defensive tackle Dick Arndt, offensive tackle Mike Haggerty, offensive guard Ralph Wenzel and flanker Ken Hebert.

Capp was with Green Bay last season and played in the Super Bowl, but the Packers dealt him to the Cardinals.

Hebert, Pittsburgh's No. 3 draft choice, is a rookie, Haggerty and Arndt second-year men and Wenzel in his third season.

Haggerty became expendable because of the play of Mike Taylor, the club's top draft choice, while Frank Parker, acquired in the Bill Nelson trade from Cleveland, bumped Arndt.

Sammy Davis rapid development at guard made it possible for the Steelers to release Wenzel, Hebert, who was expected to take over the punting chores this year, was hampered by a muscle pull and missed several weeks of camp.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Hair's the thing, a growing thing—especially off the head. Which makes this piece all about wigs and toupees: a multi-million-dollar business today, and growing.

The figures tell the hair-raising tale—in 1964, according to U.S. Department of Commerce figures, wigs and hairpieces valued at $14 million were imported from Asia and Europe. It rose to $36 million in 1965, $40 million in 1966, $70 million in 1967 and may hit $100 million this year.

And that doesn't count the domestic production which a Philadelphia manufacturer says "represents a retail market well over $300 million."

Howard M. Wagman, president of Hair Fashions, has two factories that makes 10,000 (count 'em) styled, ready-to-wear wigs every month. And the firm also distributes human hair wiglets and falls (which are a kind of hairpiece).

"In three, fast-paced years we haven't even scratched the surface of what can be done in this new and dynamic industry," says Wagman of a business that now grosses $8 million annually.

"These items are like candy—you can sell them everywhere. And with this season's introduction of a stretch wig that easily fits all head sizes, the entire industry is off to sales beyond any of our earlier expectations for this year."

Wagman got into the hair business when the firm headed by his father—an importer of wool and bristle—started declining due to inroads by substitute synthetics. Now it's never had it so good, with deep penetrations in the beauty, millinery and cosmetic markets.

What about mass-produced toupees for men?

"Well," says Wagman, "we're pretty busy just now keeping the ladies in curls—but, maybe, someday later."

Pitt Group Formed to Study Ethical Aspects of Transplants

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A 17-member committee of doctors, lawyers, university professors and theologians has been established in Pittsburgh to study the moral, legal and ethical aspects of organ transplant operations. Formation of the committee was announced Wednesday by Dr. Cyril Wecht, chief pathologist of Allegheny County and director of Duquesne University Law School's Institute of Forensic Sciences, which is sponsoring the investigation. "We will review the whole area of organ transplants, using material uncovered by similar groups throughout the world, and then hopefully come forward with some guidelines," Wecht said. "We can't come forward with any binding law," he said, "but perhaps with clear, concise and intelligent thinking we can come up with recommendations that make sense...that can answer some of the problems being raised." As an example of a problem, Wecht cited the case of transplanting the heart of a beating victim. "Lawyers for the defense," he said, "could argue that the man wasn't dead or could have survived. There are many similar cases that must be investigated." Wecht, who also is an attorney and professor of research law at Duquesne, said the committee was formed about three weeks ago. He said Dr. Henry T. Bahnson, who led a team of surgeons Saturday in the state's first heart transplant operation at Pittsburgh's Presbyterian University Hospital, is a member of the committee.

Deadline Nears for Strike Of Philadelphia Teachers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Philadelphia Mayor James H. J. Tate ordered Edward J. Martin, city finance director, Wednesday to look "far and wide" for new sources of revenue to help avert a teachers' strike Friday in the state's largest city. A strike of the 24 teachers in the West Homestead school district, meanwhile, kept classrooms there closed a second day Wednesday. But teachers in Scranton and Pittsburgh agreed to reports as scheduled and those school systems opened as usual. The Philadelphia Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, representing most of the 12,500 public school teachers, has threatened to strike Friday, opening day of school, unless its demands for a $30 million wage package and other conditions are fulfilled. Mayor Tate, terming the requests "negotiable and fair," asked Martin to explore ways to finance the increases. Richardson Dilworth, Philadelphia school board president, called the mayor's comments "incredible." School officials have said the $30 million package would "bankrupt the school system." The teachers want the $6,100 minimum raised to $9,000 over two years. There are approximately 276,600 pupils in the city's 257 schools. Dilworth promised to try to keep the schools open in the event of a strike. The teachers of West Homestead walked out Tuesday, demanding pay raises to put them on a par with the Pittsburgh teachers.

The Pittsburgh Federation of Teachers canceled its threatened walkout Tuesday and withdrew threats of mass resignations because of progress in bargaining with school officials. The federation claims it represents most of the 3,100 teachers. "We have made good progress with the school board," said Albert Fondy, president of the Pittsburgh federation. "That doesn't mean we are through, but we are willing to continue to talk in good faith." Fondy said the board has agreed to a statement recognizing the federation as official bargaining agent. Pittsburgh teachers, after a strike by 800 federation members last winter won a $600 pay raise, but will not get it until a state law penalizing public employees who strike is changed. The increase brought the starting salary to $6,500. West Homestead teachers, whose starting salary is $5,400, also want the $6,500 minimum. Scranton's 1,200 teachers reported to work as classes for 16,000 pupils opened.

County Firemen Schedule Fire School

Warren County firemen on Sunday will make a departure from their annual Field Day and participate in a Warren County Fire School to be staged at Warren State Hospital grounds. Three courses will be provided—pumps and hydraulic hose and equipment; ladder practice and protective masks and equipment and fire police. The day's schedule is as follows: 9 a.m., registration and orientation; 10 a.m.-1 p.m., classes; 1 p.m., lunch; 2-5 p.m., classes. Departments have been invited to participate in the school, a first for firemen in the area.

Bi-annual GOP Picnic Set For Friday at Wilder Field

With Bob Friend, former Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher and now controller of Allegheny county, pinch-hitting for Congressman Dick Schweiker, heading the list of speakers, the bi-annual Warren County Republican picnic will get under way at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon at Wilder Field, Irvine. Another note of local interest will be the appearance of a former Warren Man, Herb Phil, one-time physical director at the YMCA. Phil, who is county treasurer of Cambria county, will represent Frank J. Paquerilla, Republican candidate for state treasurer. Also due to make brief speeches are State Senator Dick Frame, Congressman Albert W. Johnson and Assemblyman William W. "Bill" Allen, all of whom are candidates for reelection in November. A chicken barbecue will be served at 6 o'clock by the Youngville Kiwanis Club and will be followed by the speaking program and awarding of prizes. Tickets should be purchased from committee people or officers of the county organization prior to the picnic.

Candidate Starts Swing Of Northern Tier in Warren

By BETTY RICE Congressman Dick Schweiker made his first political visit to Warren County Wednesday morning, meeting with Republican party leaders pledged to elect him to the post of U.S. Senator from Pennsylvania. Traveling with the 42-year-old candidate were Judge John B. Hannum, candidate for Superior Court and Congressman Albert Johnson, who is seeking re-election as representative of the 23rd congressional district. Assemblyman William W. Allen, also seeking re-election in Warren and Forest counties joined the group. Among those present was Miss Emma Christian of Sheffield, who was supervising principal of Norristown High School when Schweiker was a student there, and an avowed supporter of the candidate. Referring to Schweiker as "one of my boys," Miss Christian, advised he "is the best candidate you'll ever have - the kind of young man you want in public office - a man of integrity and great honor." She commented on Schweiker's wonderful family. Once the pleasantries had been exchanged the candidates got down to brass tacks. Schweiker pointed to the Eisenhower years when, he said, Republicans kept their promises for "Peace, Progress and Prosperity" as compared to the last eight years under Democratic administration of "Terror, Tear Gas and Tumult."

The GOP hopeful pointed to the 88 per cent increase in crime rates greater than the increase in population; the fact that more crimes are being committed by those under 15 years of age than those over 25 and that only one out of five crimes committed last year have been solved. Schweiker stated he didn't agree with some Supreme Court decisions insofar as criminals are concerned, adding that some of these decisions should be reversed. It was his stand that it was essential to clamp down on criminal repeaters and referred to Judge Hannum as the kind of judge people want to see in Superior Court. He cited fiscal mismanagement and took issue sharply with his Democratic opponent Senator Joseph Clark, who he said, has failed to represent the average citizen and taxpayer in Pennsylvania. According to Schweiker, who has urged tax deductions for parents trying to send children through college, Clark has voted against this measure three times. Schweiker voiced opposition to the federal registration of firearms supported by Clark. The congressman stated that those not breaking the law would be the ones to comply, not the criminal element. "Gun registration won't solve the commission of crimes," he added. Schweiker would seek a maximum mandatory sentence for criminals committing crimes if a gun is in their possession - a double penalty. The candidate said Clark is a "great spender" but not where the armed services are concerned. Cited was the lack of 52 thousand family housing units which Schweiker said, Clark has consistently fought. He claimed his opponent doesn't represent the average GI. Among the list of bills sponsored by Schweiker are those supporting veterans, housing and law and order. Judge Hannum, who has campaigned all over the state with Schweiker described him as a "thorobred" and also commented on the stature of Rep. Johnson as one of the ablest of congressmen.

Johnson said that in starting into the fall campaign the Republicans had the best chance since Eisenhower went out of office. The congressman deplored "the frightful mess the Democrats have gotten us into and the social unrest caused by eight years of Democratic rule." Johnson cited the current $365 billion national debt and urged a Republican administration to help put the country back on a sound business basis. Assemblyman Allen urged Republicans to get moving on the presidential election and stir up interest on all levels. He said more Republicans are needed in the state house of representatives. GOP county chairman Bill Rice pledged the committee would make the name Dick Schweiker a "household word." Former county chairman Gurney Ball was one of the first to endorse the Schweiker candidacy as did General Eisenhower.

Youth Joins Philly Gang To Learn About Them

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Richard Stevens, 18, a clean-cut youth from suburban Newtown Square, just spent two weeks running with a gang in Philadelphia's Manayunk section. "I was scared the first week," recalled Stevens. "No one accepted me. Everyone of them thought I was a narcotics agent. They think any outsider is a police agent." But Stevens eventually was accepted and once was even picked up by the police. Stevens said he joined the gang because of his work with a summer program at Denbigh, the Pennsylvania Diocesan Conference Center. "We had problems with some of the older kids in town. They didn't seem interested in doing anything and just hung around street corners," said Stevens. "I was interested in them, had some ideas on the situation, and wanted to see what motivated the guys in this group—a very influential one among boys in the 17 to 22 age range. I talked to a social worker about my ideas, but I wasn't trying to go in to help them. Maybe it was very selfish on my part; I wanted the experience of getting to know these boys because of my own sheltered, isolated background."

Stevens and once picked him up on disorderly conduct charges. "We weren't doing anything, we really weren't," he said. "There were three of us just standing around one night when the cops arrived. They pushed us up against a wall and frisked us. Then a paddy wagon came along to pick us up. "I was only in jail two hours. I got my one traditional phone call and called the social worker who came down right away and told them what I was doing there." Next day a magistrate dismissed the charges. He said he managed to make friends with the youths. "Most came from broken homes where they had no affection," he said. "I think they are looking for security. They are high school dropouts and can't get jobs. But I'm not sure they want them. They are always on the run—sleeping by day and traveling by night. They live by bumming things." Stevens kept a diary and is now trying to work out specific proposals to help others trying to work with gangs.

Billy Graham Foresees Political Dictatorship

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham said Wednesday he foresees a "political dictatorship within the next five years if things do not change in this country." "The only hope for the United States," Graham said, "is for a sweeping spiritual commitment by the country's citizens." He said they must have a personal faith in God. The North Carolina evangelist compared the United States to England which, he said, is on the brink of parliamentary dictatorship and could possibly have a real dictator in five years. "If things don't change," he added, "America is heading the same way." Graham also predicted that the presidential campaign will become "very rough" before the election. He said he was praying that God's candidate would be elected. The evangelist spoke to about 800 civic club members in Pittsburgh, where he is holding a 10-day crusade.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Three years ago I invited my attractive sister to move in with us. Sheila was 20 at the time -- 15 years my junior. She was bored with the home town and rejoiced when she received an interesting job offer in this city. I said, "Come ahead. We have the guest room ready."

Two weeks ago I was awakened by the barking of a neighbor's dog and went to check. I stumbled over Sheila and my husband in the back yard. It was 5:00 a.m. and they were in a pose which left nothing to the imagination. I don't believe I will ever get over the shock.

I offered my husband a divorce but he pleaded for a chance to prove he still loves me. We've been married 17 years and have four lovely children. We have no financial worries and ours was the "ideal marriage." I often thanked God for such good fortune when all about us so many of our friends were splitting up.

My husband admitted that he and Sheila have been sneaking around from the first week she moved into our home. She still resides with us and is unaware that I know this. She thinks I believe her story -- that I caught them the first and only time. I'm going out of my mind with grief. I need your help. --D.F.

DEAR D.F.: First, get your sister out of your home immediately. Then vow never to refer to the episode again. You may well emerge from this shattering experience a better wife and a stronger person. A woman who can survive a blow like this can live through anything.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why all the fuss about a snoring husband? Please tell the poor, suffering wife to invest a dollar in a pair of soft silicone rubber ear plugs and let the old buzzard blow his adenoids out.

Tell her there are fringe benefits, too. While hubby is listening to two football games at once (one on the radio and the other on the TV), she can borrow the ear plugs and read a book. I tell you, Ann Landers, it will be the smartest buck she has ever invested. It could even save her marriage. -- GRAND RAPIDS READER

DEAR GRAND: The only trouble with ear plugs is you can't hear ANYTHING -- like a baby crying, a child calling, a telephone ringing, or heaven knows what else. Several readers wrote in praise of the bloomin' things, however, so apparently ear plugs work wonders for those who wish to be totally deaf.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR HELOISE:
Here's one answer that may help "Puzzled" on dividing her cake batter evenly.

Remember how our mothers taught us to test a cake for doneness by sticking a toothpick in it? Well, I use the same method to test for equal cake layers.

Stick a toothpick in each pan of batter, then hold them side by side. If one is deeper, just spoon some out into other pan 'til they are equal.

DEAR HELOISE:
The wick in the candle under my coffee pot had burned down so that it would not light anymore.

How Sacony See's Fall

Sacony sees Fall '68 as a season of dynamic dimension. Long-respected as the fashion leader of Cielia arnel for women-on-the-move, Sacony has taken another fashion step forward by introducing wool jersey and double knit to their Fall Collection in depth. (Locally, Sacony fashions may be found at Betty Lee.)

The result -- fashion designed for Pack Age People destined to travel the globe and at home in style. The new spirit of Sacony is soft, a part of the sweet switch to femininity for Fall. The new spirit of Sacony is high-styled, with an eye not only to packing and traveling with nary a wrinkle but to designs that come on Today and a bit Tomorrow.

Beyond the dresses that have made Sacony special, are the separates. Suits make three-piece statements often teamed up with a shirt. Jumpers and vests become a part of the Sacony scene. Be it the Gad About Suit, the Incan Empire, or the Most of the wax was still left so I thought I would melt it to see if I could pull up the wick. As I was doing this, my son picked up a used birthday candle and stuck it down in the melted wax.

It works beautifully and can be repeated again and again as the wick burns away.

Muriel Davis

New York Dress... the Look says youth with spirit and style. The key to what's happening at Sacony for Fall '68 is a pleasure to seek out. They have paced their fashions to suit the demands of women-on-the-move, who no longer wish to compromise style for service. It is this combination of style and service that makes the new spirit of Sacony irresistible to fashion-seekers everywhere.

The Warren Art League will begin the 1968-69 season with a business meeting at the Warren Art Center, 305 E. Fifth street this evening at 7:30.

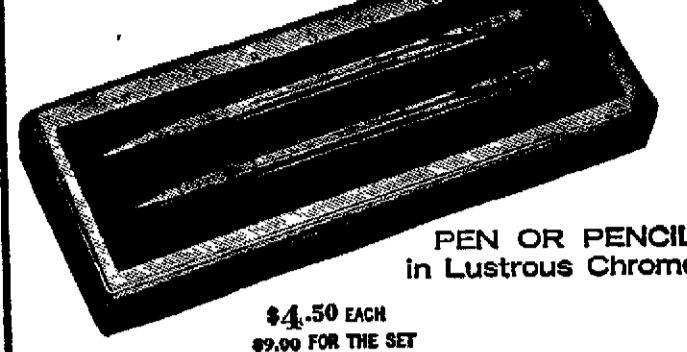

Plans will be discussed for the forthcoming Sidewalk Art Show held annually at the Warren Court House. Mrs. Myron Jewell, this year's chairman, is looking forward with anticipation to the show and sale as it promises to have on exhibit more and a greater variety of paintings than last year's successful event.

The date of the show is September 21; the hours will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. In case of rain, everything will be moved into the front corridor of the court house.

Hostesses for tomorrow's meeting will be Mrs. David Lee, Mrs. Clifford Gordon and Mrs. Frank Frederick.

| 3 ♣ | Pass | 3 NT | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

A difference in approach at the opening gun led to a substantial swing in a recent team-of-four contest, when West found himself on lead against a three no-trump contract.

The bidding was identical at both tables. North opened the bidding with one spade and South responded with two clubs. Altho North's raise to three is slightly aggressive with a holding that is not far removed from a minimum, the final contract of three no trump was reasonable.

At one table, West opened his fourth best diamond. East put up the ace and returned the ten. South finessed the jack which lost to the queen. West realized the futility of continuing the attack in diamonds inasmuch as he had no visible means of regaining the lead once the suit became established.

West, therefore, switched to the nine of hearts, in order to make a play for his partner. East took the next two tricks with the queen and ace of hearts, and then led a third round to clear the suit. South had lost the first four tricks; however, he easily won the balance with five clubs, one diamond, one heart and two spades.

At the other table, West decided from the outset that a diamond lead had little to gain. Since his own holding was virtually a washout, he decided to make a play for his partner who was marked with substantial high card strength. In the hope that East's suit was hearts, West opened the nine of hearts. The three was played from dummy and East's queen held the trick. He continued with the ace and another heart, clearing the suit.

Declarer proceeded to run the clubs on which West discarded three diamonds and East parted with one diamond and one spade. South had only eight top tricks available and, in order to score a ninth, he must play the diamond suit himself. He, therefore, entered the dummy with the king of spades in order to lead a diamond. East followed with the ten and declarer was left with a guess. He eventually chose to play the jack in the hope that it would force out the ace.

West won the trick with the queen, however, and he returned a diamond to his partner's ace—after which East cashed the setting trick with the six of hearts.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. FOR THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1968

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Conserve energies now and emphasize tact and diligence. A lot can be gained through sincere effort, which you are innately ready to give.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—Another chance for fresh gains, or at least solidifying what you have, and preparing substantially for more. Note what to change in previous methods, what NOT to alter.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Yours is among several favorably aspected Signs, but you will face competition, occasional delays, setbacks, sometimes irksome waiting, nevertheless. Still you should go forward.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—A "mark-time" period for some matters; for others, a definite need for pressing forward. Be your usual discriminating self in deciding the urgency of each situation.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Pull in the reins a bit to get your breath and recheck, to see if you are still on the sure path. This whole week will require measured gait, patience, but also sturdy faith in, and drive for, new gains.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—Mercury brightly auspicious. Give a grand account of your many talents, avoid indignation, regrets, anxiety about results. Buckle down to business -- but with a sense of humor.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Good Venus influences encourage whatever is rightly expected of you and well done by you. Take for granted that you will encounter obstacles, the indisposition of others.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23)—Just when you think you "have it made" with little annoyance, up comes the unexpected hurdle or the stymied situation. Here is where your ingenuity and versatility can play the hand. SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Wait before you offer that opinion, think twice before acting upon decisions made in haste. The mature person need not clash or browbeat to impress. Just be your clever self, quietly.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—You face fewer obstacles than many will have but, by the same token, you may have to put forth more effort and steady purpose to insure the good returns which can be yours. Shun contention.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Uranus now shows up with a friendly smile for the best you proffer, when wisely dedicated. A day for you to show your wares and your personality in their true light.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Mixed influences. Be prompt to reject unethical, or even slightly questionable schemes. Too much is at stake; too much can get out of hand. Protect properties.

YOU BORN TODAY are unusually versatile, can handle any number of occupations. Thus, you may not decide upon your life's calling with your first position. Also, it is possible for you to hold one job, pursue a lucrative avocation, and still have time for "extras" which others seem never able to fit into their schedules. Don't push yourself or your associates too hard, however, or anxiety could erupt on all sides. Take time to enjoy the "little things" in life. Birthdate of: Carol Lawrence, singer.

How to Keep Well

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

READERS WRITE

H.P. writes: "Head injuries are the aftermath of many accidents. I know all about seat belts and shoulder harnesses, but wouldn't a crash helmet be worthwhile?"
Crash helmets may be next on the list of requirements for auto passengers. My new car has seven sets of seat and shoulder belts and at the moment, there is no room for helmets. But since the risk of driving is greater than working on a hazardous job, why not wear every available safety aid?

We understand that there is a modern fedora-style helmet with an adjustable band that is easily converted into a chin strap. I suppose this is the only way we can protect ourselves from the increasing highway slaughter. In the future, the Sunday driver, his wife and children may spend an hour getting dressed and being strapped in the car for a spin. Congress may force us to wear armor like the knight of old or perhaps require the get-up of a major league catcher or professional football player.

"Do X-ray treatments of the chest have any ill effects on the heart? A friend of mine had a cancerous tumor behind the heart that could not be removed. Several X-ray treatments reduced the size of the lesion, but we were told that the radiation damaged the outer lining of the organ. Is this possible?"
Yes, but it is not common. Complications are most likely to occur when the tumors are close to the heart and the cardiac structure cannot be protected from the X-rays with a lead shield. Radiation is life-saving and the possible damage to the thin-walled sac surrounding the heart (pericardium) is of secondary importance. The full effects of irradiation may not be evident for months after therapy is discontinued.

Remedies are available for such complications. Unfortunately, many persons requiring massive X-ray are critically ill and succumb to the original disease long before heart damage is evident.

TOMORROW: Epilepsy Control.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

EXASPERATING WIFE

Mr. S. writes: I am ready to turn in my wife for two 20s. Mine shows no consideration for me. Although cigarette smoke annoys me, she smokes constantly -- at the table, in bed, and in the car. When I tell her she makes me nauseous, she laughs and tells me I am neurotic. What should I do?

REPLY

A wise husband compromises with the little woman-- he does it her way. The alternative is to head for the hills.

REACTS TO IODINE

M.D. writes: Why is it that when I apply a dab of iodine on a scratch, my eyes water as if I had peeled several onions?

REPLY

This may represent a reaction to iodine. Some individuals start crying when they smell oil of wintergreen, camphor, or other volatile substances.

SCHOOLS' OPEN

DRIVE CAREFULLY

AAA Urges Drivers To Watch Out for Kids

As schools open around the country, AAA urged drivers to be especially alert for youngsters as they travel to and from school. Warren County Motor Club pointed out that many of the younger tots will be going to school for the first time and therefore have not developed proper safe walking habits.

Citing national figures revealed in a recent AAA nationwide study, Willis C. Lundahl, president, indicated each year some 500 school children aged 5-12 are killed and nearly 11,000 are injured as they travel to and from school.

Because the AAA Study showed that kindergartners and first grade youngsters suffer the greatest number of school route pedestrian injuries, Warren County Motor Club urged parents to walk with their children on the opening day of school to make certain that the youngsters select the safest route to school. Lundahl said that parents should avoid driving children to school if at all possible for this only adds to confusion around school areas thus creating very hazardous conditions for all youngsters going to school.

As a part of AAA's nationwide effort to alert all citizens to be extra careful at school's opening, Warren County Motor Club will be displaying colorful School's Open Drive Carefully poster safety message throughout the community.

Students Must Have
Polio Shots

All new pupils entering a public school in this state are required to present proof of polio immunization, the Chautauqua County Department of Health reminded recently.

The law was passed on January 1, 1967 and mandates that this immunization is a prerequisite for a child attending a public school.

The constitutionality of this law has been upheld by the State Supreme Court and only two exceptions are granted, namely: when a religious article of faith forbids the vaccination or when a doctor certifies that the vaccination would be a health hazard.

The new student only needs a doctor's statement, usually written on a standard form, when entering school for the first time. Private and parochial schools are not covered by this law but pupils attending those schools may also be required to be immunized.

The Chautauqua County Department of Health urges parents to use the services of their family physician whenever possible. Immunization clinics will be conducted periodically by the Department to insure that all children are protected as required by law. Such clinics are under the supervision of county physicians.
